Philadelphia Libraries to Become Physical Science Labs for Elementary School Students during GlaxoSmithKline's *Science in the Summer

Registration Begins May 24 - Space is Limited

WHO

Philadelphia County students entering second through sixth grade are invited to register and attend GlaxoSmithKline's Science in the Summer program, a free and fun experiment-oriented course taught by certified teachers to groups of 15 students in two age groups: children entering second and third grades (Level I) and children entering fourth through sixth grades (Level II). GlaxoSmithKline's Science in the Summer is sponsored by GlaxoSmithKline (GSK) and administered by the American Association for the Advancement of Science (AAAS) in partnership with local libraries.

WHAT

GlaxoSmithKline's Science in the Summer program will teach Philadelphia students about the wonders of Physical Science and Electricity. Students will learn about magnetism, static electricity, electrical currents and circuits. Students will make a compass and an electromagnet and use an electrostatic generator - a truly hair-raising experience! In Philadelphia, GlaxoSmithKline's Science in the Summer program consists of two-day sessions. Two-day Saturday sessions also will be offered at select libraries. Program times vary. Please check with each library for specific start times. Visit www.scienceinthesummer.com for updated course dates or call your local library for information.

WHY

GlaxoSmithKline's Science in the Summer opens young minds to the world of science and fosters a life-long appreciation of learning. This year's class will mark over 100,000 students from the Greater Philadelphia region who will have participated in GlaxoSmithKline's Science in the Summer since its inception 24 years ago.

Registration for all Philadelphia Libraries begins May 24, 2010

Parents must register their children in person at the library they wish to attend. For more information visit www.scienceinthesummer.com or your local library.
